

About the Author

---

Author Robert F. (Bob) Turpin is an Old West historian, researcher, and authority on what he writes about. His articles and short stories have appeared in most all of the historical western magazines for over thirty years. Currently you can find a number of his articles, such as “Keeping the Old West Alive,” on E-Zines noted website and other on-line publishers. In the past two years Turpin has written and published five outstanding books about the Wild West. His newest book, Forgotten Ghosts and Legends of the Old West, is his second in a series of ghost books, and Mr. Turpin has several more in the making which will be released in the near future for your continued reading

Bob Turpin

A recent review that appeared in the Wild West History Association Journal had this to say about Turpin’s work. “Turpin presents a kind of non-fiction, historical fiction in the tradition of earlier western writers such as Walter Noble Burns. He tells some whopping good yarns without pretension and in honest prose, placing his readers in rip-roaring scenes that took place on the Owl Hoot Trail. His idea is to tell a story folks will want to read, a long tradition in the western genre.”